

First Collective Sale Cases Hit The Court

Up until recently, there have been no reported cases of where the Land & Environment Court has dealt with an application to permit the collective sale or redevelopment of a strata scheme under the new strata laws.

That changed on 19 February 2018, when the Land & Environment Court issued preliminary decisions in two cases involving proposals for the collective sale of two strata schemes in Sydney.

So, what can we learn from the first two collective sale cases? To find out download this paper Collective Sales Cases Hit the Land and Environment Court.
