

Crane Access Rights and Airspace

Sydney has become saturated with apartment blocks and cranes as far as the eye can see.

As such, one of the major issues that owners corporations are facing with these new developments is the use of cranes and airspace.

In the past 2 years, nearly 350 cranes were erected in Sydney with 298 of them used for residential purposes which is a 65 per cent increase in crane usage.

So, how does an owners corporation control the way in which developers use their airspace?

Can an owners corporation stop a developer passing a crane through its airspace?
