

New Laws to Regulate Short Term Accommodation

The NSW Government proposes to change the laws regulating short term accommodation in NSW.

Recently, the key aspects of those new laws were published for public comment and submissions. The submission period has now closed.

In this article we take an in-depth look at those proposed changes to the laws regulating short term accommodation.

We consider the impact those changes will have on strata laws and planning laws (and strata living) and also review the key features of the Code of Conduct that will regulate participants in the short term accommodation industry.
